CAREER AND TECHNOLOGY STUDIES

Career and Technology Studies (CTS) is an optional program designed for Alberta's secondary school students. As of September 1997, CTS replaced all junior and senior high school practical arts courses (i.e., former courses business education, home economics, industrial arts and vocational education).

As a program of choice, CTS enables junior and senior high school students to:

- investigate career options and make effective career choices
- learn to use technology (tools, processes) effectively and efficiently
- make connections with learnings developed in other subject areas
- prepare for entry into the workplace or further learning.

There are 22 strands in CTS. Each strand is comprised of a group of one-credit courses designed to support positive career and occupational opportunities for students. In general, strands relate to selected industry sectors, including goods-producing industries, such as agriculture, manufacturing and construction; and service-producing industries, such as business, health and finance. Learnings within any particular strand may involve similar tools and technologies, clientele, working environments, products and processes.

CTS is developed across levels rather than grades. The levels structure provides junior and senior high school students with multiple entry points into a common curriculum. Each strand in CTS offers introductory, intermediate and advanced level courses as described below.

> Introductory (Level 1) courses help students build daily living skills and form the basis for further learning. Introductory courses are for students who have no previous experience in the strand.
> Intermediate (Level 2) courses build on the competencies developed at the introductory level. They provide a broader perspective, helping students recognize the wide range of related career opportunities available within the strand.
> Advanced (Level 3) courses refine expertise and help prepare students for entry into the workplace or a related post-secondary program.

Multiple-credit offerings in CTS are planned at the school/system level by combining one-credit courses that best suit the needs of students, the school/school system and the community. The curriculum structure permits schools and teachers to combine one-credit CTS courses:

- within and across strands
- within and across levels
- with other non-CTS core and optional courses.

CTS encourages the development of resource-based classrooms where a variety of appropriate, up-to-date print and non-print resources are available. Ready access to a strong resource base will enable students to learn to screen and use information appropriately, solve problems, meet specific learning needs, and develop competency in reading, writing, speaking, listening and viewing.

Series: Special Interest Modules (SIMs)

Special Interest Modules (SIMs) are individualized units that reinforce current language arts curriculum objectives in a broad range of thematic settings (e.g., travel, sewing, computers, music, trees). The SIMs are intended to be a component of the Grades 4-6 English language program. It is expected that students will chose 4-6 SIMs during each of the 3 school years. SIMs can be used effectively in distance education or classroom environments. They can be used as part of the main program or for enrichment. Because of the thematic design, the SIMs could also be used as an additional social studies or science component.

		470972	Science Connect 1: Student Text and Multimedia CD-ROM 2002 McGraw Hill Ryerson Ltd. 0070890927 This resource is designed to meet the needs and learning styles of Science 14 students who typically prefer visual ways of learning and are motivated by relevant contexts, hands-on activities and interactive resources. The print resource features many visuals, hands-on activities, and a simplified reading level that balances science content with a variety of formal and informal activities to enhance student comprehension. The CD-ROM integrated with the textbook contains multimedia applets that link to particular concepts in the textual material. The material in the applets addresses topics that are considered difficult to teach, using interactive features, lab simulations, tutorials,andanswer format. The combined animation and video bring concepts to life to enhance the students' abilities to remember and understand what they see and hear.	Basic Student	60.97 67.75

		538499	Alberta in the Twentieth Century: 12 Volume History Set of Alberta CanMedia Inc. (Alberta in the Twentieth Century is a twelve-volume popular history of the province. Each hardcover book covers roughly a decade of Alberta history (except Volume 1, which summarizes the pre-history of the province up to 1900). The average volume length is 325 pages, and roughly 40 per cent of the space in each volume is dedicated to archival photographs, maps, cartoons, charts, newspaper headline montages and other graphics. Most of the research for the series came from original newspaper clippings, supplemented by popular and academic history texts. A more detailed description of each volume of the series can be found at albertahistorybooks.com or call 1-866-484-1262. Integrated Occupational Program
Junior High
Alberta Education Publications

New programs of study are being developed for the Integrated Occupational Program (IOP) academic core subjects - English Language Arts, Mathematics, Science, and Social Studies. In addition, essential skills (Universal Strategies) and Career Development outcomes are being developed. The core programs of study will be available for field validation September 2003 and for optional implementation in September 2004.

A list of new resources to support IOP will be posted on the Alberta Learning Website www.learning.gov.ab and will be available for purchase from the Learning Resources Centre (LRC) in January 2003. The new authorized resources will be useful for current and revised IOP courses. New resources should be reviewed for gradual phase-in according various considerations, such as need and community appropriateness.

Revised programs of study for the IOP occupational components will be available for field validation in September 2004 and September 2005. New resources will be reviewed and authorized for all occupational component courses prior to provincial implmentation dates.

Integrated Occupational Program
Senior High
Alberta Education Publications

New programs of study are being developed for the Integrated Occupational Program (IOP) academic core subjects - English Language Arts, Mathematics, Science, and Social Studies. In addition, essential skills (Universal Strategies) and Career Development outcomes are being developed. The core programs of study will be available for field validation September 2003 and for optional implementation in September 2004.

A list of new resources to support IOP will be posted on the Alberta Learning Website www.learning.gov.ab and will be available for purchase from the Learning Resources Centre (LRC) in January 2003. The new authorized resources will be useful for current and revised IOP courses. New resources should be reviewed for gradual phase-in according various considerations, such as need and community appropriateness.

Revised programs of study for the IOP occupational components will be available for field validation in September 2004 and September 2005. New resources will be reviewed and authorized for all occupational component courses prior to provincial implmentation dates.

The Integrated Occupational Program, Grades 8-11/12 Alberta Authorized Resource List includes an annotated bibliography, of basic, support and teacher resources which are available for purchase from the Learning Resources Centre (LRC). The new authorized resources should be phase-in to support learning and teaching of IOP students. Some new resources have recently been identified to support Junior High occupations. Prior to provincial implementation, new resources to support academics and occupations continue to be reviewed and authorized.
